GIBSON'S GIN MINI

"with respect for English heritage"

Story

Gibson's Gin is a London Dry Gin that respects English heritage. Gibson's Gin is owned by the French La Martiniquaise Group. The gin is distilled in England with respect for the London Dry Gin heritage. It is the second best-selling gin brand in France and is sold in as many as 35 countries.

Producer

Gibson's Gin is an authentic London Dry Gin crafted in England using carefully selected grains distilled in the traditional manner. It undergoes a meticulous process where alcohol vapors are infused with juniper berries, coriander, angelica root, and orange peels according to a unique recipe, followed by liquidation. The solution is left to rest for several hours, then diluted to bottling strength and cold stabilized before being bottled. The result is an excellent cocktail-friendly beverage, France's best-selling, among the top 10 in the EU, and exported to 50 countries. La Martiniquaise, a French company, owns Gibson's Gin, which has received numerous gold medals and consistent acclaim for its exceptional value. In 2019, the bottle of Gibson's Gin was updated to emphasize the product's authenticity and British heritage. Both sides of the bottle feature the product name in relief, and the label edges display the design elements of the United Kingdom flag. The bottle itself is sleeker and taller, presenting a more regulated and tailored appearance. Simultaneously, the Gibson's Gin recipe was slightly refined to add more sophistication and citrus notes to the beverage.
