Story The ingredients include juniper berries, along with lemon and mandarin peel, elderflower, jasmine flower, and pink and black pepper. The wooden closure and decorative opal glass bottle crown the overall presentation.

Producer "In 1934, a young Jean Cayard founded La Martiniquaise SA, a French company focused on importing and selling rums. By the 1940s, the company expanded its operations to include sales of cognac, calvados, port wine, Madeira, and other sweet wines. The company experienced significant growth throughout the 20th century and continues under the leadership of Jean-Pierre Cayard, the son of Jean Cayard. Today, La Martiniquaise is the second-largest French group in the spirits industry and ranks among the top 10 globally.
