SAINT-LOUIS BRUT BLANC DE BLANCS (20CL)

Barton & Guestier
DEPUIS 1725

"This casual sparkling wine suits many tastes"

Story Sparkling wines have always been happy to borrow royal clothes. This sparkling wine pays homage to the King of France, Saint-Louis, who ruled in the Middle Ages from 1226 to 1270. He managed to strengthen royal ties to the Loire Valley and Provence, both important wine producers. Saint-Louis Blanc de Blancs is made from Airen grapes and its quality is guaranteed by one of the leading wine stores in France, Barton and Guestier.

Producer Barton & Guestier is a wine business with an almost three-century-long history, founded by the Irishman Thomas Barton in 1725 when he settled in the city of Bordeaux. In 1802, his grandson partnered with the Frenchman Daniel Guestier, and the business flourished for a long time, shipping Bordeaux wine on ships to Ireland, England, the Netherlands, and the USA. The esteemed company faced its biggest challenges due to the devastation caused by phylloxera and the two World Wars. While no longer family-owned, the traditions persist with dedicated professionals delivering French wines to 130 different countries, widely available even at international airports. Barton & Guestier's range showcases an impressive array of France's important wine regions: Bordeaux, the Loire Valley, Burgundy, Beaujolais, the Rhône Valley, Languedoc, Gascony, and Corsica. The company collaborates with around 200 winegrowers in these areas. Barton & Guestier focuses on offering high-quality, typically French wines to the world while considering the requirements of sustainable development.
