BARTON & GUESTIER RÉSERVE CHARDONNAY

Barton & Guestier
DEPUIS 1725

"A versatile quality wine"

Story Barton and Guestier's long and extensive experience stands as a guarantee for this wine. The Réserve label on the bottle promises that you will get a little bit better wine than with Pays d'Oc IGP alone. The origin of the grapes in the Languedoc-Roussillon region makes the wine moderately priced compared to, say, similar wines in Burgundy. Limoux grapes makes for a well-balanced and fresh blend while Gard grapes add elegance and creaminess. The grapes were harvested in the morning and evening. Short skin contact before fermentation gave the wine diversity. A delight for the consumer and wine lover. Suits vegans.

Producer Barton & Guestier is a wine business with an almost three-century-long history, founded by the Irishman Thomas Barton in 1725 when he settled in the city of Bordeaux. In 1802, his grandson partnered with the Frenchman Daniel Guestier, and the business flourished for a long time, shipping Bordeaux wine on ships to Ireland, England, the Netherlands, and the USA. The esteemed company faced its biggest challenges due to the devastation caused by phylloxera and the two World Wars. While no longer family-owned, the traditions persist with dedicated professionals delivering French wines to 130 different countries, widely available even at international airports. Barton & Guestier's range showcases an impressive array of France's important wine regions: Bordeaux, the Loire Valley, Burgundy, Beaujolais, the Rhône Valley, Languedoc, Gascony, and Corsica. The company collaborates with around 200 winegrowers in these areas. Barton & Guestier focuses on offering high-quality, typically French wines to the world while considering the requirements of sustainable development.

COLOR Light golden yellow

AROMA Citrus on an elegant nose, white peach, pear and vanilla

TASTE Dry, acidic with a good body, mellow and fruity, well-balanced and long. With a hint of oak and vanilla at the end

TIPS FOR USE A pleasant social wine, but also very versatile at the dinner table. At its best with white meat, poultry, salads and pasta.
