Italy, DOC Prosecco Treviso

SOLIGO PROSECCO BRUT (20CL)

"For a small need of sparkling"

Prosecco Brut is made from 100% Glera grapes. For a long time, the variety was also called Prosecco, depending on the type of wine. Soligo Prosecco is produced with the tank fermentation method. When fermented, the temperature of the wine is kept low and fermentation is slow, in order to maintain the maximum fruitfulness of the wine. Soligo Prosecco Extra Dry is an elegant and slightly lighter choice for a welcome toast. Prosecco also goes well with sparkling wine cocktails to bring freshness and crispness.

Roducer Cantina Colli del Soligo is a cooperative comprising 600 members who cultivate grapes in the Treviso area over an expanse of more than a thousand hectares. Of the 15,000 tons of grapes harvested, the primary variety is Glera (85%), used in the production of Prosecco with several designations such as Conegliano Valdobbiadene Prosecco DOCG, Asolo Prosecco DOCG, and Prosecco DOC Treviso. The cooperative also produces varieties including Pinot Grigio, Sauvignon Blanc, Chardonnay, Merlot, Raboso, Pinot Nero, Cabernet Franc, and Cabernet Sauvignon. Established in 1957, the cooperative has long strived to produce top-quality wines in the heartland of Prosecco, Conegliano Valdobbiadene, classified as a UNESCO World Heritage Site.
