SOLIGO PROSECCO ROSÉ

SPUMANTI DAL 1957

"Finally in pink"

Story Prosecco Brut is made from Glera grapes, but a legislative change makes it possible to use the Pinot Noir grape – and the result is a bright pink charmer. With ten percent Pinot Noir, the result is a subtle pink. Soligo Prosecco is produced with the tank fermentation method. When fermented, the temperature of the wine is kept low and fermentation is slow, in order to maintain the maximum fruitfulness of the wine. Soligo Prosecco Treviso Rosé is an elegant and trendy choice for your first cup.

Producer Cantina Colli del Soligo is a cooperative comprising 600 members who cultivate grapes in the Treviso area over an expanse of more than a thousand hectares. Of the 15,000 tons of grapes harvested, the primary variety is Glera (85%), used in the production of Prosecco with several designations such as Conegliano Valdobbiadene Prosecco DOCG, Asolo Prosecco DOCG, and Prosecco DOC Treviso. The cooperative also produces varieties including Pinot Grigio, Sauvignon Blanc, Chardonnay, Merlot, Raboso, Pinot Nero, Cabernet Franc, and Cabernet Sauvignon. Established in 1957, the cooperative has long strived to produce top-quality wines in the heartland of Prosecco, Conegliano Valdobbiadene, classified as a UNESCO World Heritage Site.
