BARTH ROSE PET NAT BIO

”A petillant Nat Wine”

Story

B Nat is Barth’s version of Pétillant Naturel, the naturally petillant wine, in brief Pét Nat, which is one of the newest phenomena in the wine world, a real hype. The wine is based on Cabernet Sauvignon Rosé, closed with a crown cap while still fermenting in a sparkling wine bottle. The carbon dioxide produced by fermentation dissolves in the wine as carbonic acid and causes the wine to sparkle. The wine is unfiltered and the cork is not changed, which makes this initial form of sparkling wine cloudy. There is no added sugar in the wine, which usually happens for sparkling wines in connection with a cork change, hence, it is Brut Nature.

Producer

"Rheingau is one of the world's most renowned wine regions, known for producing some of Germany's finest wines. In the heart of Rheingau, where the river makes a curve and vineyards are on south-facing slopes, Johann Barth began cultivating grapes in the sun-drenched hills of Hattenheim in 1948. His son Norbert transformed the place into a full-fledged winery in 1973. Norbert's daughter Christine married the talented oenologist Mark, who took the family name to continue the estate's traditions. Since 2010, they have modernized the estate extensively, and Barth's wines have received widespread acclaim. Riesling white wines are considered the kings of Rheingau, but alongside their production, Barth is a leading producer of traditional sparkling wine, Sekt. Customers highly appreciate them, from Lufthansa to Michelin-starred restaurants. Mark and Christine Barth's estate now spans 18 hectares, primarily cultivating Riesling (83%), along with Pinot Noir (12%) and Pinot Blanc. The grapes are grown biodynamically, and the estate is a member of both the VDP organization, representing Germany's finest estates, and the Charta association."
