WEINGUT BRAUN CABERNET SAUVIGNON

”Gentle,but lively”

Story Ellerstadt of Rhineland was the first wine region in Germany, where Cabernet Sauvignon grapes were planted. The pioneer was Heinrich Vollmer in 1984 and he was tried for his work. The result was fines and an order to tear the vines off the ground. Next instance exonerated them from this, but imposed a fine of one Deutsche Mark per vine. The decision was soon overturned and the variety became permissible and controlled by regulations. So Braun’s Kirchenstück plot wine offers a personalised, a wine that mirrors its yard and has a soft acid, which is also part of German wine history.

Producer Weingut Braun was established in Meckenheim when the family businesses of the current owners' grandparents merged in the 1970s. The Ellerstadt and Meckenheim estates did not need to ponder a combined name, as both parties bore the surname Braun, despite not being related. The foundational values of Weingut Braun in winemaking revolve around the perspective of nature and respect for the environment, essential elements in producing both everyday wines and distinctive premium wines. "It is a joy to make wine that you fully stand behind but also love to enjoy yourself. We live for and through wine." The wine selection at Weingut Braun is impressively extensive. In addition to Rheinpfalz white wines, the range includes red wines, rosés, and sparkling wines, featuring familiar varieties like Riesling and Müller-Thurgau alongside several lesser-cultivated grapes in the region, such as Cabernet Sauvignon and Sankt Laurent.

COLOR Dark ruby red

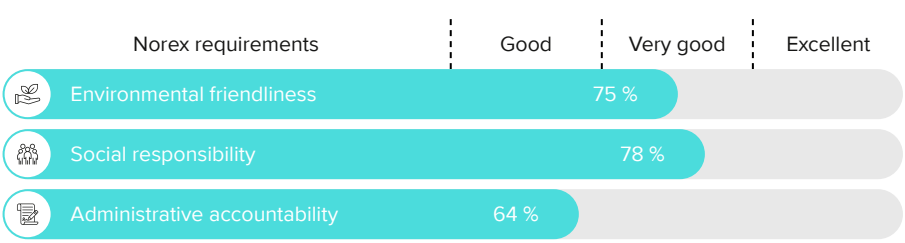

AROMA Boysen berries smelling, blackcurrants, fresh dark plums, thyme, vanilla and cinnamon

TASTE Dry, medium-bodied, supple, berrylike fruitiness, long and well-balanced. Gentle, easily approachable and elegant taste

TIPS FOR USE Multi-purpose food wine sits on a barbecue, for fried meat, especially for mutton and game, but its acidity makes it perfect for a cheese tray. Its fine balance also makes it a great social wine or a chaser for savoury snacks.
