CHAKANA NUNA VINEYARD CABERNET FRANC

CHAKANA

ANDEAN WINES

"A soulful wine"

Story Nuna is the largest vineyard in Chakana and at the same time the largest certified organic vineyard in Argentina. In the ancient local language of Quechua, Nuna means soul. The temperature changes a lot between night and day at the vineyards, cool nights retain a fresh acidity in the wines. Chakana Nuna Vineyard Cabernet Franc Wine Uses Wild Yeast in Uncoated Concrete Tank, after which the maturation will continue in old 500-litre French oak casks for 10 months. This Bordeaux Auxiliary Grape rises to a new value, offering a daringly structured, multifunctional and personalised wine.

Producer "Chakana, which means "Inca's Cross," represents a powerful symbol from the ancient cultures of the Andes. This sacred geometric design is visible on the labels of many Chakana wines. The Argentinian Chakana winery is profoundly committed to organic farming, minimal intervention, biodynamic practices, fair production, social responsibility, and sustainable development. It is believed that permission has been sought from Mother Earth, Pachamama, to produce these wines. Established in 2002 as a family-owned estate, Chakana began its export business from scratch in 2004. Over time, it has attracted investors and grown to export 1.5 million bottles to 25 countries. The 150-hectare vineyards of Lujan de Cuyo, located at almost a kilometer altitude, produce Demeter-certified organic wines. Production is segregated into small tanks to preserve the individuality of different plots. Their production extends to the regions of Valle de Uco and Tupungato. Gabriel Bloise, a new-generation winemaker at Chakana, advocates minimal intervention during fermentation, the use of natural yeasts, porous containers, and minimizing sulfur use to capture the wine's true origins."

COLOR Dark ruby red

AROMA Dark cherry aroma also serves blackcurrants, cocoa, black pepper and leather

TASTE Full-bodied, velvety tannins, notes of cigar box, notes of blackberry and slightly oaky

TIPS FOR USE This richly flavoured wine pairs well with beef and lamb, for barbeque, spicy meat stews and strong-flavoured cheeses. A glass for the chef in the fragrant kitchen.
