

"A wine for many situations"

Story Santiago de Chile Chardonnay grapes come from the Central Valley region, which is the largest wine-producing region in Chile. Chardonnay grows almost everywhere where wine is grown and is subject to a wide range of cellar processing. Chardonnay is a humble grape, a real all-round player, as it gives the world's most expensive dry white wines, but also more mundane wines. Chardonnay wines from Central Valley have a fresh acidity and pure aromas. Huaso Collection refers to the famous, skilled and traditional Chilean horsemen, without which no fiesta would be complete.

Producer Global Wine House is a brand builder and commercial player in the beverage industry. Their two brands, Dreamer and Gran Castillo, are among the top five in the Baltic region. Their mantra is straightforward: wine should speak an easy language that is understandable and trustworthy for buyers, approachable and enjoyable for consumers.
