ALIATS INK BLANCO ORG

”An exuberant charmer”

Story

The Verdil grapes for Aliats Enguera were cultivated at an elevation of 650 meters in limestone-rich loamy soil. After harvest, stems were removed, and the pressed juice underwent an 8-hour maceration before a 25-day fermentation in stainless steel tanks at a temperature of 12 °C. Maturation for three months occurred partially in stainless steel tanks and partially in French oak barrels. Verdil is a native Valencian variety that has been revived for the production of quality wines. The 16-year-old vineyard is surrounded by a Mediterranean forest. The bats on the label signify collaboration with bats hosted in the vineyards, each capable of consuming up to 1000 insects per hour. The label is designed by the legendary comic book artist Neil Adams. This organic wine is suitable for vegans.

Producer

"Perez-Pardon family, based in Spain, owns Bodegas Engueran, established in 1999, which possesses 160 hectares of high-quality vineyards. Situated in the southwest corner of the Valencia province, the landscape is characterized by mountainous terrain dominated by ravines and wide valleys. The area has long-standing traditions in winemaking, with incredibly diverse soil variations, embracing the concept of terroir, which is also intrinsic to Valencia. Diego Fernández, the young Valencian winemaker at Bodegas Engueran, completed his wine studies in Montpellier, France, gaining winemaking experience in France, Australia, and California. The Pardon family's vineyards are individually typed and classified, allowing each plot to grow the grape variety best suited to it. Bodegas Engueran's production is organic, suitable for vegans, and additionally holds a Carbon Proof certification. They've also established the Bodegas Enguera Mediterranean Viticulture Institute to explore the most ecological and environmentally friendly vineyard techniques. Bodegas Enguera stands as a trailblazer in Valencia's wine production, offering wines with an exceptionally good price-to-quality ratio."
